MARGINAL COLUMN

BY MIRIAM REIFMAN

"The sudden 'deadlock' in the current negotiations between Egypt and Britain is no less surprising for being so long in coming. Coming at a time when Cairo has been generally considered eager to normalize its relations with the West, it must be seen as one of those artificial crises whose usefulness for Colonel Nasser is confined strictly to the propaganda of his development. It is not typical enough. When the financial agreement was initiated on January 14, Dr. Abdel Moneim El-Khatib, U.A.R. Central Finance Minister, declared that it was 'certainly a step towards resumption of diplomatic relations' between the two countries; in fact, the agreement itself reportedly included a clause to that effect. Subsequently, the British negotiators, anxious to secure the interests of British whose claims are involved in the agreement, suggested that an official mission in London to supervise the implementation — and that its members should be granted diplomatic immunity.

On Wednesday morning, Cairo Radio began to let it be known that the U.A.R. authorities had 'decided to postpone consideration of resuming diplomatic relations with Britain until they have consulted the Arab States which have a role to play in the relations with that country at the time of the Suez War.' The Radio's correspondent, who was said to have 'learned' what was happening, did not elaborate on the subject. But this third-party stance was even flimsier than it seemed when the Arab heads of State met in the Lebanon area in November, 1956, to discuss appropriate measures against the British and French Governments in retaliation for the Suez operations, only Syria and Saudi Arabia concurred with Cairo's suggestion that the Arabs should sever off their ties with London, and Jordan promised they would take measures if Britain failed to comply with United Nations resolutions.

NOW there is no more, and there is no need to consider. As to Saudi Arabia, King Saud's real quarrel with Britain has never been over the Suez operations; his decision to break off relations with London, and to maintain that breach, has much more to do with the dispute over Buraimi, and he probably does not care one iota about the relations with Britain. In fact, the question as to whether or not the Arabs should sever off their ties with London, and Jordan, therefore, Nasser seems to be a free agent. But once a bluffer always a bluffer. On Thursday, choosing the very opportune moment of a meeting with a Labour M.P., Nasser managed to fling around one of those special insults which a Great Power can expect from a former dependant. Declaring himself 'surprised' at alleged British insistence on resuming relations before signing the agreement, Nasser told the no doubt shocked M.P.: 'We cannot accept any linking of these two matters.' Where could he find cheaper or easier propaganda?

It may be useless to speculate on the real reason behind this clever maneuver. One possible explanation would be the fact that the agreement just drawn up leaves Nasser with nothing to boast of, since by accepting it he has agreed to terms which he rejected two years ago. The agreement, moreover, may show him in a bad light among his own anti-Western disciples in the Arab world, whose eyes are beginning to turn to the more vocal voices in Baghdad, particularly as their broadcasts have now adopted Cairo's favorite cause. Aden, the so-called Arab South and the real reason for Nasser's move, it is quite possible that Nasser had no particular reason for conjuring up his latest trick — except, of course, the need to score a victory over the imperialist.

THE chances are that real people in London, more used to conventional ways of conducting negotiations, will be prone to assume that this imaginary victory of Nasser's, secure as they are in their knowledge that the agreement itself gives Britain a fairly good deal. The lukewarm Arabic society of the B.C.C. will certainly refuse to condescend to the extent of explaining what has really happened. And it is almost certainly useless to point out again that it was always by such totally unreal victories that Colonel Nasser managed to build himself up as the formidable force he now is.

MIKOYAN REPORTS ON U.S. BERLIN DATELINE NOT INFLEXIBLE

MOSCOW (UPI). — Russia indicated on Saturday she might be prepared to suspend the May 27 deadline for turning over East Berlin to the Communist East German Government if the West agrees to begin negotiations before that time.

The hint was given by Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in his first press conference with the Moscow press corps since his return from his coast-to-coast tour of the U.S. on Friday.

Emphasizing the Soviet Union's readiness to listen to counter-proposals from the West, Mr. Mikoyan said in reply to correspondents' questions:

"The fact that we set a deadline on Berlin is nothing abnormal because negotiations cannot go on indefinitely. The main thing is not the deadline, but to have talks. If there is good will on the Western side, negotiations could be prolonged for a few days or a few months."

This was interpreted here as an indication that the Soviet Union might be willing to suspend the May 27 deadline if East-West negotiations are under way by that time.

Mr. Mikoyan made clear his belief that the U.S. Government was lagging behind other "political leaders" in its desire for expediting Soviet-American relations.

He said his talks with President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and Vice-President Nixon were "very satisfactory" and that he was "pleased" with the results of the recent past.

U.S. political leaders have been expressing themselves in favor of improving Soviet-American relations.

Mr. Mikoyan said that, despite the cold war and many prejudices in the U.S. against Russia, the feeling and atmosphere in America is favorable for "steps towards strengthening peace."

He added that many American resolutions.

Khrushchev Plan Envisages 35-Hour Week for Russians

MOSCOW (Reuters). — Premier Nikita Khrushchev plans to introduce the two-day weekend to Russia's millions of factory and office workers.

By 1963, Russians will for the first time be able to spend both Saturday and Sunday at home, under a seven-year plan which Mr. Khrushchev will present to the 14th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party which opens on Tuesday.

He promises that the change-over will begin in 1964, with the loss of pay. In 10 years' time, he claims, the Soviet Union will have the shortest working week in the world.

Ministry officials said that the change-over will be a 35-hour week, while office and factory workers will have a seven-hour five-day week. He warned that the speed of the change-over will depend on how quickly new techniques, such as automation, are harnessed, and production costs cut.

223 A Month

By the end of the seven-year plan in 1965, lower-paid workers should be earning about 223 rubles a month, over £125 at the official exchange rate of 11 rubles to the pound sterling but less than half of that at the more realistic tourist rate of 37 rubles.

This will close the gap between the upper and lower income groups, but the Communist Party Central Committee journal "Kommunist," recently told its readers that it was "erroneous" to believe that the new wage scale paid the same in a Socialist society.

Higher-paid workers seem to be excluded from any significant pay rise under the new wage scales now being introduced in Soviet industry. But Mr. Khrushchev's claims that increased welfare and other state benefits will boost real wages by an average of 40 per cent.

Meanwhile, it was reported in the Turkish paper, "Jahaz," received here on Saturday, that Sukman Bahceci, 45, former Premier of the Soviet Republic of Turkmenia, has been dismissed from the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party for "breaking Leninist norms of party life."

Mr. Bahceci was recently also dismissed as First Secretary of the Turkmenia Communist Party.

AFTER MIDNIGHT

Alert in Two States

President Eisenhower Friday night declared flood-stricken regions of the two states disaster areas and authorized immediate federal aid.

Near-zero temperatures plagued thousands of volunteer food workers, including National Guard reinforcements, as they struggled through the night to restore broken levees and rescue stranded families. The U.S. Weather Bureau, however, predicted a warming trend in the weather-ravaged regions.

In Britain, floods which brought danger to some 30

Difficulties In 'Baghdad' U.S. Defence Pacts

KARACHI (Reuters). — Pakistan and her Baghdad Pact partners, Persia and Turkey, opened talks here on Saturday about the latest drafts of new bilateral mutual defence agreements submitted by the U.S.

The alliance's economic, military, and counter-subversion groups have been meeting here to prepare for the Council session which opens on Monday.

On Friday, three generals and an air marshal, two lieutenants and a high-ranking advisor of the three Middle States, Britain and the U.S. met to consider the defence plans of the alliance which were disrupted by the Iraqi revolution last July.

Replicating 'Doctrine'

With the U.S. expected to sign bilateral defence accords with Pakistan, Persia and Turkey, official sources here said these will be intended to "spell out" America's commitment to each of these countries in place of the "seahorse Doctrine," which is considered too vague.

(As Moscow, TASS, the Soviet news agency, on Saturday warned the Arab states that the Baghdad Pact nations in Karachi were directed against them.)

One official Pakistani source said Washington reports that the U.S. had run into difficulties with Persia and Pakistan on the new treaty drafts, which are partly true, but that there was plenty of "scope for a compromise."

He denied negotiations had broken down.

In Washington, it was said that the conference discussed both Persia and Pakistan had asked for commitments much stronger than the U.S. felt able to make.

The U.S. has made it unlikely that the treaty will be signed, as planned, during the Council meeting here, it was added.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Britain had agreed to provide £50,000 to permit technical aid and joint projects to be carried out in the Baghdad Pact region.

New 'Bandung' For Colombo This Year

COLOMBO (Reuters). — An Afro-Asian conference to discuss economic cooperation, proposed by Ceylon Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike, may be held here towards the end of the year, official sources said on Saturday.

They said that of 31 countries to which the proposal was sent last October, 12 had written supporting it. The countries addressed were the 29 which attended the 1955 Afro-Asian conference in Bandung, plus Malaysia and Singapore.

Mr. Bandaranaike's proposal was that the conference discuss economic problems of regional planning and coordination and cooperation in the fields of food production, trade, shipping, supplies and development planning.

APF reported from Bangkok that the second session of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ECAFE) opened on Friday, in the Thai capital, attended by 120 representatives of 20 nations, including India, China, Hungary, Italy and Rumania are participating as observers.

Press reports from Cairo on Friday said that the U.A.R. would agree within 48 hours from then to the establishment of such a mission, though it would not consent to the restoration of diplomatic relations between the two countries at present.

Diplomatic observers here said that if the Cairo reports were accurate, the agreement might be signed in Cairo Monday. Signature of the agreement which was initiated a week ago has been held up by the issue of sending a British mission to Cairo to help in its implementation.

The request for the reception of such a mission was made last week in a message from Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd to his counterpart in Cairo, Mahmoud Fawzi.

An editorial in the "Daily Telegraph" on Friday alleged that a wave of Communist propaganda in the Middle East was being spread by the U.S. for the sake of regaining assets in London is the real cause of the delay in signing the agreement.

But for this, the British demand for adequate diplomatic machinery to implement the declassification clause was not now being asked, the paper's Cairo correspondent in Cairo added.

EXPRESS DELIVERY

WASHINGTON (Reuters). — The U.S. Postmaster General, Mr. Arthur Summerfield, said on Saturday that the U.S. was on the "threshold" of sending mail by guided missiles through outer space to all corners of the globe.

He said that before now, mail was sent by air, by sea, by land, by rail, by road, by air, by sea, by land, by rail, by road, by air, by sea, by land, by rail, by road.

The famous conductor was in Israel for the whole of last July, conducting the Israeli Philharmonic.

Oil Pipeline

Reports recently published here that France and Israel have come to an agreement or signed a contract regarding the construction of an oil pipeline were termed premature, but they are expected to do so soon.

On Saturday, Mr. Eshkol conferred with a group of French Jewish capitalists, among them Baron Edmond de Rothschild, who are planning to make further investments in Israel.

Castro Said Moving Against Communist Labour Leaders

HAVANA (UPI). — Fidel Castro has moved to end the spectacular aspect of the Cuban "War Crimes" trials and has carried out his first major crack-down on the resurgent Communist Party, it was reported here on Saturday.

But in Caracas, Venezuela, where he is making a goodwill tour, Dr. Castro asserted, "We will continue to do justice for the crimes committed during the Batista dictatorship... (even though) our country is suffering the most criminal, cowardly and vile campaign ever conducted against a people."

"Even though the world side with me, justice is in Cuba," he told a wildly cheering crowd of 100,000 in the Venezuelan capital. He arrived in Caracas on Friday and received a hero's welcome.

While Dr. Castro was away, the head of the War Crimes Tribunal, Agriculture Minister Humberto Sorí Marín, postponed further trials until Monday and indicated that subsequent proceedings may be transferred from the Sports Palace to the privacy of a court room in Havana.

The revolutionary government also moved to curtail television and radio coverage of the trials. The trial, conviction and death sentence of the first Havana defendant, Major Jesus Sosa Blanco, took place before a cheering crowd of 30,000. The execution was upheld a week or more when Sosa appealed to a higher

France to Build Ships, Oiler For Israel — Eshkol

By MAURICE CARR, Jerusalem Post Correspondent

PARIS. — Finance Minister Levi Eshkol said on Saturday that Israel would soon sign a purchase order for two 13,000-ton cargo ships and a 35,000-ton supertanker to be built in France. He was speaking shortly before resuming his journey home from the U.S.

Mr. Eshkol described his 45-minute conversation with Finance Minister Antoine Pinay on Friday morning as "very satisfactory." While refusing to give details of the economic and financial matters discussed, Mr. Eshkol said he had discussed with Mr. Pinay the difficulties for Israel arising out of such considerations as the extremely difficult situation of the franc and the entry of France into the European Common Market.

Post Political Correspondent

The official report is expected to be made at today's (Sunday) Cabinet session. As the Committee of Two, consisting of Prime Minister Ben-Gurion and Minister of Justice, Mr. P. Rosen, has concluded its work on proposed details for carrying out the principles of direct Mayoral elections, the Cabinet is also expected to conclude the discussion on the amendments to the Municipalities Ordinance.

The Minister of Finance, Mr. Levi Eshkol, is also likely to report to the Cabinet on his tour. He returned to Israel late last night from his visit to the U.S. and Europe in connection with raising funds for the new large-scale immigration from Eastern Europe.

Provocations Grown Serious

Israel's extreme concern over the grave incident on the Syrian border on Friday when Syrian troops murdered a shepherd from Kibbutz Lehavot Habashan, will be called to the attention of the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization in a meeting in Jerusalem on Sunday (today).

Dr. Avraham Biran, Director of the Foreign Ministry's Armistice Affairs Division, will confer with the Acting Chief of Staff of UNTSO, Col. Robert Rickert.

Political observers in Jerusalem pointed out that Friday's murder was the third premeditated killing committed by Syrians who penetrated well inside Israeli territory and laid ambushes.

It was pointed out that this series of murders was carried out from ambushes 200 to 400 metres inside the Israeli border. It includes the killing of Mrs. Joyce Doron in November, and that of Asaf Bieler near Kibbutz Gonen in early December. In addition, the recent kidnapping of two Israeli soldiers, Kfir Blum, was also carried out in a similar way.

Border Clearly Marked

Further, the international border near the site of Friday's incident is clearly marked by a 1.20-metre-high stone wall, put up during the Mandate period. As any intrusion into Israeli territory in this area must therefore be fully premeditated, U.A.R. political and military authorities are considered directly responsible for the incident.

Israel has been acting with restraint during the past few weeks in order to maintain calm on the Israel-Syrian border, but the repeated Syrian provocations are reaching serious dimensions, it was noted.

Jordan Halts Expulsion Of Armenian Clerics
Jerusalem Post Reporter
The Jordan Ministry of Interior has suspended indefinitely an expulsion order issued recently against an Armenian Bishop and three other priests in the Old City. The Jerusalem Post learned on Saturday.

A spokesman for the Armenian Church in Israel told The Post that Bishop Kalousian, a former Bishop of California, and the three other priests were declared persons non grata a few months ago during the political crisis in Jordan.

The expulsion order against the Bishop and the three priests who joined the Brotherhood of St. James in Jordan two years ago, was issued on political grounds, and primarily because of the connection with the mother church in Soviet Armenia. The Post learned.

During the Sinai campaign the Jordanians expelled the present Armenian Patriarch, Tiran Nersoyan, who is also an American citizen and former Archbishop of New York. He was then the Armenian locum tenens in Jordan. Three months later the order was cancelled, prior to his installation as Patriarch of the Armenian Church in Jordan.

In the Supreme Court Sitting as High Court of Justice

Before Justices Silberg, Gotsen and Ben-Zion.
Egged Co-operative Ltd. v. J. B. Rosenwein.
2 Nahariya Labour Council v. Zvi Flash, Respondents (H.C. 149/58)

Labour Dispute Defined

The High Court discharged an order nisi calling on the respondents to show cause why the first respondent should not refrain from dealing with the dispute between the petitioners and the third respondent.

The petitioners, the Egged Transport Co-operative, engaged the services of the third respondent, Zvi Flash, as a porter-cum-cleaner-cum-luggage attendant at their Nahariya bus station. In accordance with their agreement, Flash was regarded as an agent of Egged and as such not entitled to the usual of a hired worker. The Nahariya Labour Council intervened and demanded that Flash be given the status and privileges of a hired worker. Egged responded by terminating their agreement with him.

The Nahariya Labour Council intervened and demanded that Flash be given the status and privileges of a hired worker. Egged responded by terminating their agreement with him.

On the Return Day, the representative of the Nahariya Labour Council testified that the Council had intervened in the dispute between the petitioners and the third respondent because they considered the conditions under which the latter was engaged. These did not ensure him a minimum subsistence wage and denied him the usual conditions granted to other employees of Egged.

On the question of whether the matter was a labour dispute, the court decided in accordance with section 2 of the Law on individual dispute is one between an employer and employee.

Mr. D. Katriel appeared for the petitioners; Mr. A. Shilo for the second respondent (the Nahariya Labour Council) and Mr. F. Landau, Deputy State Attorney, assisted by Mr. Terio for the Attorney-General.

Decision
Justice Ben-Zion, who delivered the High Court's decision, said that the definition of "individual dispute" in the meaning of the law may be said to have arisen in one of three instances: When the dispute is between an employer and all parts of his organization when it is between an employer and a labour organization, and when it is between an employer's organization and a labour organization. In the present case, he said, the dispute falls into the second category, as the Nahariya Labour Council had intervened in the interests of all the organized workers of Nahariya.

As to the argument concerning the definition of "individual dispute" — which section 2 expressly excludes from the definition of "labour dispute" — he agreed, continued Justice Ben-Zion, with Counsel for the At-

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, President of the World Zionist Organization, will deliver the opening address on "A Test for Judaism and Zionism," while Mr. Walter Eytan, Director-General of the Foreign Ministry, will speak on "Israel's political situation." The meeting is expected to open with greetings from the Netherlands Government and the Amsterdam municipality.

The purpose of the conference is to devise joint activities for the various participating organizations and, in general, to secure their closer cooperation. An innovation with the gathering is the presence of the representatives of the young Zionist organizations. With the aging of the veterans of the Zionist movement, one of the main topics to be discussed will be "Means of mobilizing a new generation."

On Monday, Mr. Avraham Harman, of the Jewish Executive, is scheduled to open a debate on "The Future of European Jewry."

In the gathering will be representatives of the Spanish and Greek Jewish communities, which have no national Zionist organization. The conference was to be preceded on Saturday night and Sunday by a meeting of the presidents of the various European countries, devoted to emergency fund-raising activities, with Mr. L. Dulait, Chairman of the Jewish Executive in Jerusalem, as the main speaker.

Pineau Still Bitter About Premature Cease-fire at Suez

By ARTHUR HAUL BUTER, Jerusalem Post Reporter

It is a great pity that the U.N. and the J.S. stopped our Suez campaign two days before success. M. Christian Pineau told The Jerusalem Post at the Ramat Aviv Hotel here on Friday. It was a blow to the prospects of peace in the Middle East.

A new Egyptian government would have made an equitable and satisfactory settlement on the Suez Canal problem first and gone on to peace with Israel afterwards, the man who was Foreign Minister of France at the time of the campaign stated. "I have no antipathy to the Egyptian people," M. Pineau continued, "but I am always apprehensive of dictatorial regimes. It never ceases to surprise me that the British and the Americans do not understand the problem of world Communism. They think that if a leader is against the Communist Party in his own country he is automatically against world Communism and Russia. This is not true."

For M. Pineau, the "problem of the Communist parties in other countries is purely secondary. It was struck during my recent visit to Russia, to hear leading Russian Communists speak with such enthusiasm of French Communism."

Asked how he visualized the future of the Middle East, M. Pineau said he saw a general world Communist offensive developing here.

The answer must be a general agreement in the world to aid under-developed countries. One of the reasons Communism made such headway was the vast masses of poverty-stricken people to whom it could make an immediate appeal.

M. Pineau also felt that the West was too inclined to grant large sums of money to the people at the top and not concern itself with how the funds were devoted to raising the people's standard of living.

His personal opinion on Algeria was that integration was not possible. He favoured the "Algerian personality" solution, which meant real local autonomy within the French community.

Increase in Airletters Short on Postage

The Post Office has announced that if the number of airmail letters posted with insufficient postage does not drop appreciably, it will be forced to return such letters to their senders.

At present the Post Office despatches such letters and notifies the senders of the balance they owe. The number of air mail letters with insufficient postage has grown tremendously following the introduction of the new postal rates.

A new postal rates guide is available at all post offices.

Offer to Post Bond in Even Vaid Case

Soli Boneh on Thursday proposed to post a bond covering any possible loss which might be incurred by Mr. Benjamin Kav-Venaki by its demand to cancel the temporary injunction forbidding Soli Boneh from changing the management of the Even Vaid company.

The temporary injunction was issued by District Court Judge B. Shapira on January 22 following the introduction of a request of Mr. Kav-Venaki who claimed that he was a large shareholder in the company and therefore should have been consulted before such a change was made.

The hearings on the proposal will be held next Wednesday.
